REDS PREPARING ANOTHER TAEGU DRIVE

Begin shelling U.S. supply road North of city

KOREAN

Taegu Front, September 10. The Communists began heavy shelling of the First Cavalry Division's main supply road four and a half miles North of Tacgu at sundown today in what appeared to be preparation for another all-out attack on the city.

An Eighth Army spokesman said he believed the shelling presaged an attack, "as concerted as they are able to make," by two North Korean divisions—the First and 13th.

These divisions had been probing the North West corner of the United Nations beachhead above Taegu for more than a week.

Sheer madness tor Chinese Reds to enter

Washington, September 10 The Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, said today

it would be sheer madness for the Chinese Communists to enter the Korean war.

Mr. Acheson told told a television audience that the Communists would only invite dismemberment and destruction if they lost, and stood to gain nothing if they won. China, he declared, must realise the Soviet threat to absorb its Northern p svinces. "I give the people in Peking intelligencel enough to see what is happening to them," the Secretary said.

"I cannot see why they should. want to further their own dismemberment and destruction by getting at cross-purposes with all the free nations of the world who are inherently their friends and have always been the friends of the Chinese as against this imperialism coming down the Soviet Union."

Truman vetoes Asiatic

Washington, September 9. President Truman today vetoed the bill which would have granted naturalisation rights to American residents of Asiatic origin who have been barred from citizenship.

He did so because it contained a provision that would deny citizenship to persons associating with Communist front organisations.

He asked Congress to reenact the second part of the bill, which would have theorctically removed the last racial bars to naturalisation. It would have made it possible for an estimated 84,000 Japanese, 3,000 Koreans, and 145 listed As Polynesians of other Aslans, all now living in the U.S., to become naturalised citizens provided they could otherwise qualify. the maintenance of peace."

The basic consideration in carrying out the decision, he said, is the degree to which America's Western Ailies "match our actions in this regard."

The statement came on

Nanking Embassy

Tokyo, September 10. An Egyptian diplomat was soriously wounded when he engaged three armed robbers who broke into the premises of the Egyptian Embassy in Nanking, according to a Poking broadcast.

Boutros Abadir, Egyptian charge d'affaires originally accredited to the Nationalist government; was admitted to the Nanking Presbyterian Hospital with serious knife wounds and is in a critical condition, the radio said.

The incident occurred at 11 p.m. on September 3. The three robbers overpowered the watchman and entered the Embassy premises at 59, Peking Road, Nanking.

From a Chinese staff member who lived on the premises, they demanded the keys to the Embassy safe, explaining that they "had the Soviet Zone of Germany come from Formosa and that yesterday after taking off from they wanted to borrow money | Amsterdam, were today on their from foreign nationals for their way back to Holland, the Swetravelling expenses back to dish Consulate here said today. CLEAR CONFLICT

Paris, September 9. A clash between Britain and the United States on financial policy was beginning to work up behind the scenes of the International Monetary Fund meeting in Paris today.

The difference, it was learned in quarters close to the Fund's Governors, might, develop into a threat to the unity of the sterling area.

The immediate clash was on wool and dollars. The United mechanisation of agriculture States clearly thinks that, if and the modernisation of trans- the Korean war has made dollars easier to get and wool Programmes were submitted harder, wool should in future allocations, and the sterling area should relax exchange controls which were designed to cut dollar buying.

This attitude put both Britain and Australia in a difficult position. If wool were distributed by international allocations instend of on the free market, the United States could get the wool having to outbid other buyers, including Russia.

But Australian wool growers would also have to give up some of the profits they are making culture reported today. in the present wool price boom. HONG KONG WATERFRONT

BY OUR HARBOUR REPORTER

Originally trained in the ancient craft of sail making, these veterans are spending more energy and technique in producing lifebuoys and life jackets, which are more in demand today. By a systematic process of division of labour, boards of cork are cut into pieces, carved into the desired shapes, glued together and finally sewed into canvas jackets- in one working day, two life Jackets or one lifebuoy can be made by one worker. ("China Mail" Photo).

SAIL MAKING IN DYING TRADE

How the ancient craft of sail making was first introduced into Hong Kong is still a matter of conjecture but it is known that the founder of the Colony's oldest sail making shop learned it from European seamen aboard visiting windjammers some 90 years ago in Victoria Harbour.

Since 1860—when one Yip Woon founded the "A. Lung Sail Making Company," the first in Hong Kong—the trade has seen many prosperous periods. But the general consensus now is that sail making is a dying craft due mainly to the current depression in the local shipbuilding industry.

AN HONEST LIVING--THE PEANUT VENDOR

Selling thousands of brilliantlyolled pennuts-roasted and salted for the palate—is a business generally undertaken by a vociferous young lad whose strident cries are a familiar sound along the Praya in the noon hours.

waterfront community, this enterprise is another of the numerous "honest living", one-man businesses to be found in the Colony's cradle of industrystretching from Connaught Road, Central, to West Point.

Though it is not actually a full-time job-usually starting in the afternoon—the peanut vendor can at best earn as much as $5 a day, which entails not more than five hours of work.

His capital is meagre—a few dollars for the raw ground nuts (several cattles), oil, firewood and a tin of table salt. He sells at

(During the 10 minutes-before and after the picture was takenthe vendor seen below sold two five-cent, and three 10-cent spoonfuls of peanuts.)

Why this type of business thrives in the afternoon hours can perhaps be explained by the fact that these little calory-rich nuts serve well as afternoon "snacks" to a hurrled labourer or as tosty "tit-bits" for the idling
